Vernon, 14-year-old son of Rev. J. O. Willett, was drowned in the Mississippi river at Caruthersville June 26, while in bathing with a number of companions, who it seems were powerless to render any assistance. Rev. J. O. Willett held a series of revival meetings at the Baptist church here last November and has a number of friends and acquaintances here who will regret to learn of his loss and sudden bereavement. We will add that Vernon was a nephew of Miss Vance Willett, who has spent two years at Will Mayfield College, and has many friends here, especially among our young people.

John Spargo's powerful article, "Child Slaves of the South," in the WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION for July, is a further evidence of the earnestness with which that periodical has entered into the campaign against the evils of child labor. It is supplemented by an outline of the plans of the publishers for the organization of a national league for the abolition of child slavery. But this serious purpose has not lessened the usual amount of reading matter of general interest in the magazine. "The Hat and the Man," by Henry Irving Dodge; "My Plume," a delightful girlhood reminiscence, by Clara Morris; "From the Van Cleave Jewel Box," by Anne O'Hagan; "A Nice Little Thing in Blue," by Miriam Michelson; and "The Adopted Doll" are among other stories that appeal to a variety of tastes. Timely questions are discussed by authoritative writers—"Should We Reform Our Spelling?" by Mary Browne Harris; "Has the Club-Woman Supplanted the Church-Woman?" by Charlotte Perkins Gilman; and "Finances and the Girl on the Farm," by Anna Steese Richardson. Characteristic articles on summer cookery, fashions, etc., increase the value of the magazine as a household publication.

G. W. Leggett of Drenn was in town Tuesday and gave this office a pleasant call.

William L. Clippard and Miss Varoncia Ebberts were married at the home of the bride's parents at St. Francis, Arkansas, June 28. The groom is the youngest son of Judge D. C. Clippard of this place and is an exemplary young man, and his many friends here extend their best wishes for the happiness and prosperity of the young couple.

Was in Poor Health For Years. In W. Kelley of Mansfield, Pa., writes: "I was in poor health for two years, suffering from kidney and bladder trouble, and spent considerable money consulting physicians without obtaining any marked benefit, but was cured by Foley's Kidney Cure, and I desire to add my testimony that it may be the cause of restoring the health of others." Refuse substitutes. All dealers.

According to a Republic special from Jefferson City, dated July 2, Governor Folk granted a sick pardon to Absalom Kinder, convicted in Cape Girardeau county in October, 1904, of murder in the second degree and sentenced to the penitentiary for ten years. Kinder is in the last stages of consumption, and his release was recommended by the prison physician and board of inspectors.

War Against Consumption. All nations are endeavoring to check the ravages of consumption, the "white plague" that claims so many victims each year. Foley's Honey and Tar cures coughs and colds perfectly and you are in no danger of consumption. Do not risk your health by taking some unknown preparation when Foley's Honey and Tar is safe and certain in curing. The genuine is in a yellow package. All dealers.

Mrs. W. D. Smith and four little daughters, and sister, Mrs. Daist, of St. Louis have taken rooms at the Jackson House for the summer. No better place to spend the hot summer days than in Marble Hill.

A Republic special dated July 2, from Dexter says, H. H. Larimore, Edward Weber and H. M. McIntosh with their families, and Misses Neil and Pansy Carter, Mollie Fisher, Tavia Tompkins, Bonnie Barrie, Bertha Smith, Dee Dwyer, Katie and Lizzie McMullin, all of Dexter, departed this morning for Cape Girardeau where they will take a steamboat for a week's outing up the Tennessee river.

Children's Rights. There is one among the children's rights that is very often not respected by their elders. It is their right to be treated with civility and politeness. They are taught—or should have been and ought to be—to be respectful to their parents and teachers and all older people, but the opposite obligation is not often enough insisted upon and practiced. If there be more in older persons to call forth respect [which we doubt], there is also with them, or should be, more capacity for showing respect, more knowledge, judgment and practice in courtesy. Children are quick to follow example, and to do as they see others do is but natural with the children. The pattern, much to be regretted, is too often but a poor one. Not only are parents remiss in recognizing and granting this right of children, but teachers in our schools have yet to learn much of what they owe to their pupils. In many instances these teachers, who are paid to look after the department of the children entrusted to their care, are grossly disinterested, both as to words and manners, and many of them are in no sense fit to have charge of the little ones to whose impressionable minds they show forth the very rudest manners and most discourteous language. They would not dare to talk to the parents and guardians as they do to the children. Many parents who are careful of the manners and speech of their little ones at home are at a loss to understand where their carefully guarded children learn such rudeness of speech and such brazenness of manner as they sometimes display. This is but another reason why parents and guardians should visit the schools and familiarize themselves with the companionship to which they subject these tender charges, and as to the fitness or unfitness of the teacher for the trust and reliance placed in his or her hands. Teachers are no more faultless than are the pupils they are supposed to train properly, and being seldom visited by the parents they are on their best behavior when "visitors" do appear, and thus the child is more often than not unjustly blamed for offensive manners and speech when they are only "following copy."—The Commonwealth.

Reply to Farm Observer.
ZALMA, MO., JULY 2, 1906.

ROBERT FARRER:

In your issue of last week there was a communication from some one at Zalma, signing himself "Farm Observer," in which he arranges the farmers for sending to mail order houses for supplies. I don't blame him for kicking at that for it certainly has profits. That is not what I intend to answer, however.

In the latter part of his article he strikes at an institution and the promoters of which and whom he knows about as much as a hog knows about Sunday.

He says that the farmers have lately "pinned their faith to another fraud." Has the gentleman investigated and found him to be a fraud? No! He only knows that that fraud is teaching the farmers ways and means to stop another skinning process, a process in which Farm Observer has, perhaps, been engaged in himself. You know "a hit dog howls" so that must be what is the matter with him.

He calls the merchant the friend of the farmer. Yes, he accommodates the farmer sometimes but when he does, the farmer usually pays for it with good interest, and he calls that an accommodation.

He howls about the farmers organizing against their home merchant and banker. Wonder who told him that? He seems to have heard it thunder but doesn't know in what direction it comes from. He knows that if the farmers do get thoroughly organized, and stand together Mr. Farm Observer might lose some of that high per cent he has been levying on farmers.

But kick on Mr. Farm Observer it won't do you any good. Farmers are waking up and when they all get together quite a number of people will be compelled to recognize him as a factor in commerce.

As to that search warrant business I would say that we were not born in a thicknet and can't be scared out of the country by a "counter hoper." We are here to stay regardless of your kicking.

He has not even informed himself as to the name of the organization, so I would suggest that he and all like him come to the Ladd school-house the night of July 13, and learn more about this organization.

ASKED FOR TONGUE FOWLS.
An old fellow known throughout the community, says an Oklahoma paper for his stuttering, as well as his shrewdness in making a bargain, stopped a farmer and his team and inquired:

"How many chi-chi-chickens have you got?"
"Eight, sir," replied the farmer.

"T-t-tough, or t-t-tender?"
"Some are tough and some are tender," was the reply.

"I k-k-keep b-b-borders," said the old man. "I pick out the four t-t-tough chi-chi-chickens, if you p-p-please."

The honest farmer very willingly complied with the unusual request, and said in his politest way:

"These are the tough ones, sir." Upon which his stuttering customer coolly put his hand upon the remaining four, and remarked:

"T-T-take the t-t-t-hose."

G. B. Burdick Testifies After Four Years.

G. B. Burdick of Carleton Center, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick dust sediment, and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble.
